AN IRISHMAN'S LUCK OUR SERIAL STORY

Mr. Jordan Proves Difficult

It was the evening of the last Wednesday in June—Marion Enderby's wedding-day—and Mr. Jordan was jogging quietly homeward down the town line. It had been a perfect day for a wedding—a scrumptious peach of a day," so Daisy described it, and everything had gone off happily, and again, to quote Daisy, "the whole show had been a howling success." Yet in spite of all the parson was in rather a gloomy humour, and apt to be a bit the peevish if Vixen, his mare, showed a skittish disposition to shy at perfectly familiar stumps or boulders by the side of the track. But then the day had turned out better for Vixen than her anticipations, while with her master was quite the reverse. When fort under the he June sun for the she was hitched up in the Rectory yard at nine in the morning and kept going at too smart a pace for com- full twelve miles up to the Dingle church, she had come to the conclusion that there must be two sundays in this week, and Vixen had no use for Sundays; her master was always in a fidget, and as often as not she had no proper time to digest her noonday oats before he would be hurrying her along to his afternoon service. In fact all the way up Vixen had been disposed to be a little sulky, but when, the wedding over, she was driven to the Dingle and put in a cool stall by the side of her old friend, Tom Dennis's mare, with a big bundle of sweet new hay before her in the manger, she recovered her good humour; doubly so when she heard Bert say to Sam, the chore boy, "You can take the harness of Mr. Jordan's mare and give her some oats when she has cooled down, she won't be wanted till evening." Vixen was very fond of her master except Sundays, and her playful jumps and starts at imaginary ponds as she took her way home at a pace of her own choosing, was just her way of showing her appreciation of the decent, way an animal was treated at the Dingle. It was too bad that Mr. Jordan jerked the lines and growled—of course, a perfect proper vigorous start to one side cramped the buggy and brought it up on to two wheels—but then the parson was not full of oats and contentment. That his vexations were rather undefined only vexed Mr. Jordan the more; he was rather fond of saying that he never worried about the difficulty of getting over a stile until he came to it, a piece of philosophy which his wife utterly repudiated as a mark of his English shiftness. When, as was usually the case, the stile was the meetings of a note at the bank or pay- ing an insurance premium that would fall due in a month's or so time.

But though the parson would not vex his spirit in the dog days by the problem of how he should pay his butcher, for instance, next Christmas he had a fine talent for worrying himself about things that affected the well-being of his church or the hap- piness of the scattered members of his flock. He was not, in his heart, con- tent with the marriage of Dugald McLeod and Marion Enderby, and at the same time he had an uneasy feeling that he ought to be.

He liked an respected Dugald McLeod—his farming, his solvency and his moral character were beyond re- proach. For some time before and during his engagement he had attend- ed the English church services with far more regularity than many of the young Englishmen in the settlement, and his attentiveness to the sermon than once Mrs. Enderby had expres- sed privately her hope to Mr. Jordan that "her Dugald" would by and by join the church and be confirmed. She even went so far on one occasion as to the parson that he should find an opportunity to discuss it with Dugald. He had not done so, partly because he thought proselytizing rather poor religion and very ill manners, and partly because he was satisfied that any such efforts would be ultimately a failure—as he said to his wife—"you can't win Calvinism off a Scotchman like dust off a table, it's in the fibre of the stock. Dugald has been coming to All Saints' with Marion while he's been courting, I suspect with very much the apology of Naaman when he went into the House of Rimmon, and he'll continue to come on and off as long as Marion can come with him, but as soon as there is a baby in the house he'll go to church alone that will be the end of it! Marion is not stiff like Daisy, and she'll go with him in the long run. I've no taste for trying to change his predilection, and when a man is named Dugald McLeod you can take it for granted he's pre- destined to die a Presbyterian." This little ethion in the parson's

An Irishman's Luck

fish was purely on Church lines, a second was more personal. When Tad had brought out his father's black robes' bag to the buggy in the morning he had asked in an incidental sort of way, 'I suppose there won't be anything coming my way, Dad, out of the wedding fee?'

'I'm afraid not, Tad,' he had answered. 'I expect it will be the regulation five dollars, and your mother have that for boots for the two little kiddies.'

'Still,' Tad had urged, 'even a tight might spring a ten when he's getting married—and I've three dollars I made at digging seneca root, and there's a dandy racquet at stirlings' for eight.'

'Well, if he does, you shall have five, but I wouldn't build on it too much.'

It had proved the regulation five, and there would be no racquet for Tad yet awhile, and his father hated to disappoint him. These, after all, were only his lighter vexations as he drove along, providing a sort of background of mental depression for more serious problems. That he loved dearly the confidence which led all sorts of people to bring their troubles to him, he often grumbled in a self-pitying way at being made, as he said, 'a dumping ground for other folks' trials,' as if he had none of his own, dumping that day on the part of Mrs. Enderby.

The wedding had been a very simple, family affair. After what Daisy insisted on calling the 'elegant dejection' to take the train for Winnipeg for a week's honeymoon, and Daisy had invited there or four young men on the previous Sunday to come over for tennis and afternoon tea. Mr. Enderby, finding the time rather heavy on his hands as being neither a Sunday nor a working day, compromised by releasing his frock coat of the wedding by a horse jacket and taking Sam to help him look for a cow which had not come home for a couple of days, and was suspected of hiding in the bush with a newborn calf. This left the field clear for Mrs. Enderby's dumping. Mr. Jordan, though he would have gladly struck for home, where he had a big potato patch which needed hoeing, felt that it would be ungracious to insist on leaving in face of Mrs. Enderby's earnest invitation that he should stay at least self about the parish. He knew Mrs.

Enderby well enough to know that her usual phrase about the parish was often rather figurative. It might mean that he was to be urged to make a fresh effort to shepherd Dugald in to the Anglican fold, a subject which might fairly be called parochial, but the last conference ushered in thus was to tell him of Daisy's engagement to Chris Raye and to ask his opinion on the propriety of announcing it in the social columns of the Winnipeg papers. However trivial it might be in reality, he knew that he would be expected to treat it with the seriousness which it was sure to possess in her eyes, so he followed her to the rustic seat in the shade of the bluff and sat down to listen with a decent air of interest and sympathy.

But this afternoon Mrs. Enderby evidently found 'the parish' a little difficult of direct approach. Starting off with saying how much Marion would be missed at none in the management of the house, she branched off into so many apparently disconnected topics that Mr. Jordan was completely mystified as to what particular point of the parish or the Diggle economy he was to be consulted about. Now, it seemed to be the difficulty there would be in keeping Sam the chore boy, in his place after Marion was gone; now, the remoteness of Mrs. Hardie in not seeing that her little boys learnt the collect for Sunday school; this led, by no very obvious route to the question of the propriety of Chris Raye driving Daisy down to the tennis tournament in town, involving in some obscure way the deciding as to whether, since Chris was an orphan, Mr. Enderby should write to Chris's uncle and guardian before Mrs. Enderby had received a letter of congratulation from Chris's maiden aunt from whom he had expected. Just as the person was trying to co-ordinate some reminiscences of the procedure in the case of the engagement of a sister of his own some twenty years before, Mrs. Enderby suddenly broze new ground with the point blank question, 'Don't you think Miss Raye would make an admirable wife for Bert?' So this was after all the real object of the little talk about the parish.

Much pleased with herself for what she considered the diplomatic way in which she had led up to the subject so near to her heart, Mrs. Enderby became more intelligible, and by the end of the next half hour Mr. Jordan was possessed of the situation with some measure of definiteness. He had been sure for some time past that, sooner or later, Bert would propose to Evelyn, but he was rather surprised to learn that he had done so a month before and had been refused. It was evident, however, that Mrs. Enderby did not take the refusal very seriously, and was quite satisfied that in the end Bert's suit would be successful. It was quite usual for girls to show a certain reserve in such matters, but she could hardly understand any girl refusing a young man like Bert, so eminently desirable in every way as a husband. Mr. Jordan, of course, would not mention it to any one, as it was quite a secret; no one had the least idea of it beyond Marion, who naturally would tell her husband now, and Daisy, who would ask Chris to use his influence in Bert's favour. Possibly Evelyn might confide in Mr. Jordan, and in that case Mrs. Enderby felt sure he would say a good word for her dear boy—and so on, and so on.

The parson was as sympathetic as he could be, he liked Bert and all the Dingle people very much, but at the same time he could not help a certain feeling of relief when he heard that Bert was not accepted; it confirmed his own opinion of the depth of Evelyn's character, and in his heart he was better pleased that she should remain single for the sake of Tom Dingle than find consolation in even such a very nice fellow as Bert.

But though Mr. Jordan was prepared to be sympathetic, he had little taste for the more active cooperation which Mrs. Enderby evidently expected at his hands, and as she elaborated in her own way the steps that were to change Evelyn's first refusal into a final acceptance, he could not help feeling a contempt for a woeed who was content to win on such terms mingled with a pity for Evelyn, who was evidently under all due forms of

DETAILED INFORMATION OF THE VICTORY LOAN, 1919

Money Will All Be Spent In Canada—Will Ensure Prosperity In The Future—A Chance To Do Good And At The Same Time Make A Good Investment—The Details

Canada's big drive for the $300,000,000 that will enable her to pay her war bills, and carry the country safely through the re-construction period with no cessation of the present prosperity commenced Monday.

On that day canvassers throughout the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, as far north as the Hudson's Bay and the Yukon, started their rounds of the homes of Canada. It will be the duty of all Canadians, who have the welfare of their country at heart to greet them cordially. Because in them will be represented the Dominion's very urgent appeal for money.

The campaign will last three weeks. During that time it will be carried into every corner and end of Canada. If you are not carried by one of the army of canvassers, you will be able to make your investment in this new issue by obtaining application forms from any Victory Loan committee or from the branches of any chartered Canadian bank.

The details of the loan are as follows:—Canada offers for public subscription $300,000,000 worth of 5 1-2 per cent. gold bonds at par, bearing interest from November 1st 1919, and offered in two maturities: five years and twenty years, the choice of which is optional with the subscriber. The interest will be payable half-yearly, without charge on May 1 and Nov. 1, at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank.

The demomoinations of the bonds are $50, $100, $500 and $1000. Subscriptions may be paid in full at the time of application, or on any of the following dates; ten per cent on application, twenty per cent December 9th 1919, twenty per cent January 9th 1920, twenty per cent 10th February 1919, and balance March 9th 1920. The latter includes thirty per cent balance of principal and 1.21 representing accrued interest at 5 1-2 per cent from November 1st 1919, to due dates of the respective instalments. A full half-year's interest will be paid on May 1st 1920, making the cost of the bonds $109 and interest.

Of the $300,000,000 and over that will be raised every cent will be spent in Canada. The proceeds will be used to pay the indebtedness incurred during the war and to meet the expenditures to be made in connection with the demobilization and the re-establishment of our soldiers in civil life. This will include the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, the authorized war service gratuities and land settlement loans. Other expenditures include the national undertakings forming part of the Dominion's industrial reconstruction plans, the Relief Fund, and for the establishment of credit facilities abroad so that we may dispose of our huge surplus of foodstuffs, timber, manufactured articles and other products.

The need for the money is urgent. And in subscribing the citizen will not only be doing Canada a real patriotic service but will be making an investment that cannot be equalled, because as security behind the bonds offered there is the entire wealth of Canada.

If they kill two partridge (ruffed grouse) they will be only allowed to kill eight prairie chicken the same day. RIBSTONE M.D. TO BE RE-ASSESSED TO COMPLY WITH MUNICIPAL DISTRICTS ACT

A special meeting of the Council was held at the office of the Secretary at Chauvin, on Saturday the 25th instant at two o'clock p.m.

All the members of the council were present.

The special business of the meeting was the assessment of the Municipal district, according to the recent amendments of the Municipal Districts Act. The Council were pressing the Council to commence assessing this fall; and all values are to be submitted to the Department early in the Spring, to allow the Tax Commissioner to equalize the assessments throughout the whole of the Province.

Application for the position was placed before the Council from Mr. G. M. Beattie of Chauvin, a returned man, who offered to undertake the work for the sum of $250 per quarter section, with an additional sum for horse-keep. Having in view the many details required by the Department in the case of each quarter section to be assessed, the Council considered the sum asked as very reasonable; and owing to the pressure being brought to bear to have the matter fixed at once, it was deemed advisable to make an appointment immediately.

Mr. Beattie was then interviewed by the Council, and satisfied the members as to his experience and ability to execute the work. It was suggested that the emuneration be fixed at the sum of 25c for each quarter section assessed, with the addition of Mr. Beattie agreed to accept the ar-

Councillor Dumont moved that Mr. G. M. Beattie be appointed assessor for this Municipal District at the rate of 25c for each quarter section assessed by him, with the addition of $50.00 for horse keep expenses. Carried unanimously. The Secretary was instructed to draw the necessary agreement for this purpose. The meeting then adjourned.

Tanlac the most popular patent medicine of the age in which we live. Price $1.10 per bottle.

The Chauvin Great War Veterans turned out in good numbers to their meeting last Saturday evening. Considerable headway has been made in their practicing for the big event on November 11th. This will be a real good show.

Do not forget the dance at Prosperity, next Friday evening. These dances are always worth while.

ARTLAND ARGUS

We are pleased to learn that a movement is on foot for the establishment of a local branch of the G.W.V.A. for the Artland and Brady district. We are not yet in possession of details, but these have been promised shortly, and we shall have pleasure in publishing them in due course.

The remarkable October we are having this year again distinguished itself last week by launching another little blizzard over us. The trails we flurried about in a fine style, and the tempers of motorists were sweetly ruffled by radiator worries and other miseries.

All those sad eyed croakers who recently were chattering about paralytic ducks and geese, and who apparently hailed from the regions of Edmonton seem to have been a deal out in their predictions. No one appears to have died from eating ducks and geese. All the guns that ventured out report having a good time.

It is to be hoped Mr. Howells will be well supported at the Grain Growers meeting and entertainment at the Brady school, next Friday, Oct. 31st.

We understand that there will be a dance after the address, and it is to be hoped that everybody will attend.

The amazing political somersaults in the Ontario elections last week, are almost certain to taken advantage of, by Mr. Howells in addressing the achievements of the "Ontario United Farmers" as an example for political effort on the part of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers Association.

However, whether Mr. Howells follows this line or not, there is sure to be a pleasant evening all round, particularly as we understand that Messrs. Voss and Foley have something to do with the dancing arrangements and that means a lot to all lovers of the "light fantastic."

Artland this week will have quite a lively time shipping out cattle. Mr. A. W. Robinson, of Chauvin, having no less, according to a report that reaches us, than eleven cars of stuff for the eastern market. Some of our local shippers are contemplating considerable consignments for the same destination.

ROBERT JUKES,

RURAL MUNICIPALITY OF MANITOULAKE, NO. 462.

Notice

Notice is hereby given, in accordance with their provisions of the Stray Animals' Act, that the period during which Herd Law remains in force in this Municipality, is further extended until the 16th day of November, 1919.

Dated at Marsden, Sask., this 21st day of October, 1919.

H. D. SWARBRICK,
Secretary.

R. M. Manitou Lake Council Meeting

The usual monthly Council Meeting of the above named Municipality was held on Monday October 27th, 1919. Present, Mr. Chapman, and Councillors Graham, Smith, Lawson and Mitchell being present.

Business opened with the reading of a letter from the Dept. of Highways with reference to gravel deposits in the Municipality suitable for road surfacing and it was decided to write the Dept. stating what gravel beds had been found, suitable for this work. The question of the addition to the Municipal Building was discussed and a Committee, consisting of Councillors Smith, Lawson and the reeve, was formed to award the contract for same. The matter of payment for Seed Grain Loans was brought up and in certain cases the Secretary was instructed to press for payment where the grain had been sold. Other matters under discussion were the Unity Hospital scheme and the fencing of Road Allowances within the Municipality and it was decided that no person be allowed to fence Road Allowances without the consent of this council. With regard to the scheme for a Union Hospital at Unity, it was decided to leave this matter over until next meeting in order to find out the feeling of the taxpayers on this subject. The meeting terminated with the passing of the Sanitary Inspector's Report and various accounts for material supplied for roads. It is noted that the next meeting of the council be held Monday, November 3rd.

This is the first time that a farmers own shipment of this magnitude has been made in the West, and its is a justifiable source of pride to us all that our district is the one to make this innovation. All possible profits will come to the raisers, all un-necessary expenses cut out, and every one in the district will reap reward from the public and the train will give the district a more greater competition for our cattle. There will be many buyers looking for land in this district next year. Here's to the continued success of our farmers—as good as any in the West.

Following the inquest, which was held late on the same evening, a preliminary hearing of the alleged boy murderer was convened on Friday evening where a repetition of the inquest evidence resulted in the accused being committed for trial.

After The Arrest
In his intercourse with the prisoner Constable Duncan states that the boy seemed to be rational, although putting up a childish pretense of insanity, he was without any particular consciousness of his crime and seemed to be undeveloped rather than criminal.

A meeting of the Chauvin Curling Club held October 27th at Codes of Ice. J. A. Code was appointed President; C. C. McKeehan Vice Pres.; J. A. Code Secy.-Treas.; The executive committee consisted of Messrs. Keith, Swan, Allan, Freeman and Monkman, and the officers were instructed to go ahead with the necessary preparations for this year's curling. At the meeting the Secy. was instructed to solicit subscriptions at $10.00, and if thirty members were obtained, we could be assured of a good rink, and also be on the safe side as regards finances. Let us have your support in the interests of this winter's sports and if the Secy. does not see you, endeavour to see him and pay up, so that no time may be lost.

Why the dickens don't you fellows start the curling rink agoing—it might at least help o moderate the weather

OUR LITTLE ADS DO BIG WORK

At 8.40 on Thursday evening Constable Duncan was in receipt of a telephone call from the Oxville district near Lloydminster, giving him the first inkling of the crime. Procuring the coroner, he at once left for the scene of the murder, but because of the blocked conditions of the road the constable did not reach his destination until after ten o'clock. Three miles from Jacob's farm, he found the entire Jacobs family, with the exception of the two boys, at the home of

The proceeds of the Loan will be used to pay indebtedness incurred, and to meet expenditures to be made in connection with demobilization (including the authorized war service gratuity to our soldiers, land settlement loans, and other purposes connected with their re-establishment into civil life), for capital outlay upon shipbuilding, and other national undertakings forming part of Canada's industrial reconstruction programme, and for the establishment of any necessary credits for the purchase of grain, foodstuffs, timber and other products, and will be spent wholly in Canada.

Payment to be made as follows:
10% on application: 20% December 9th, 1919; 30% January 9th, 1920;

Subscriptions other than those paid in full on application must be accompanied by a deposit of 10% of the amount subscribed. Official Conveyancers will forward subscriptions or any branch in Canada of any Chartered Bank will accept subscriptions and issue receipts.

Meat Scrap And Tankage For The Laying Pullets

Leghorn pullets, if heavy layers, consume about 82 pounds of feed per year.
Pullets that were poor layers used 13 pounds as much feed as the good layers. This amount of feed, if of the proper kind, may increase egg production over 100 eggs per bird.

When given an opportunity pullets ate eight to ten times as much oyster shell as grit.
Results indicate that the presence of animal protein in a ration increased the efficiency of the other feeds given.
Although the egg production varied from year to year, the general tendency was for meat scraps and tankage to be equally efficient.

The pullets in the hen fed tankage had an average of 185.5 eggs; in the meat scrap pen, 170 eggs; and in the no meat-fed pen 95.35 eggs per year.
Under war time conditions it cost slightly over $2 to feed a laying Leghorn pullet for 12 months.
It cost an average of $0.125 for feed to produce one dozen eggs in tankage pen. $0.136 in the meat scrap pen, and $0.13 in the no meat-fed pen.

It cost less to feed a pullet when no tankage or meat scraps were fed, but it cost more to produce one dozen eggs.
The amount of feed required to produce one pound of eggs was 3.4 pounds in the tankage pen, and 3.77 pounds in the meat scraps pen, and 9.32 pounds in the no meat-fed pen.
Sudden severe lowering of the temperature in the winter retarded egg production of Leghorns.
The profit over feed costs was $4.17 in the tankage pen, $4.40 in the meat scraps pen and $0.42 in the no meat-fed pen.
A Leghorn pullet produces about 25 pounds of manure on the so-called each year.
There was nothing to indicate that the ration given had any influence on the mortality of the flocks.—Purdue Experimental Station.

Is The Machinery Under Cover

If a machine shed was a profitable investment five years ago, when farm machinery was little more than half the price it is today, it is a doubly profitable investment now. Many of the most costly machines are in operation only for a few days each season. They are subjected to wear only for a few weeks at most in the year. But if they are not protected the weather is busy 365 days in the year, and one day more every fourth year, destroying their usefulness and shortening their life. Rain, sun, wind and snow, between them, can account for more damage to an intricate machine than all the work it has to do. The higher the price of farm equipment mounts, and the more of it the farmer has to pay to carry on his business as laboring becomes more and more reluctant to go out on the land, the greater are the returns from an investment in an implement shed.

There is no building of its size on the farm that can be erected so cheaply as an implement shed. Warmth and light are not considerations. Anything that will keep out the sun, rain and drifting snow will give the machinery all the protection it needs. But appearance must not be neglected. A neat implement shed, covered with a coat of paint improves the appearance of any farmstead. The additional cost is a trifling matter and the paint will soon pay for itself in protecting the building that protects the machines. Western farmers are proverbially handy with tools. The necessities of a pioneer life furnished most of them with a working knowledge of building construction. A good place to apply this knowledge is in putting up a shed to protect the implements and prolong their usefulness.

LANDS INSURANCE LOANS

The Cheapest Rate for Farm Buildings is quoted at Forty Cents per $100 per annum; Three years for $1.20 per $100; and this rate is only quoted by the WAAWESA MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY. This is a purely farmers' company, and handles only farm property

INSURE NOW AND FEEL SAFE
Canadian Pacific Railway Lands: Call in and see the price list: 20 years terms, one-tenth cash payment with application; no further payment of capital until the fourth year. Interest at six per cent per annum. If the necessary improvements are executed in the first year, the interest will be reduced to two per cent for two years. This is a good proposition, and these lands are being rapidly absorbed. Do not delay until too late, as these lands will be turned over again at a big profit.

Hudsons Bay Lands. I have the latest prices on all the holdings of the Hudsons Bay Company and am ready to quote you at any time. The terms are—8 equal payments with interest at seven per cent per annum. The prices are now down to a very low figure, and these lands are sure to turn out to be a good business proposition. Values will soar again, and the H.B. Lands are mighty good buying at present quotations. That quarter alongside your own will make a fine addition to your farm; and, believe me, it is better to be in on the ground floor when you buy.

Loan Companies have all kinds of Money to Loan on Improved Farm Property, First Mortgage. I am advised by one of the most reliable firms that their great concern at the present time is to find sufficient applications to take up this surplus money. Interest at eight per cent. Five or ten year terms. No commissions charged to the Mortgagor; and the costs of obtaining same were never so low as at the present time. If you are interested, call or write; but remember that there is no shortage of cash for this purpose.

Have A Care For Engineer, If Not For Your Own Self

Accidents resulting in death through automobiles being struck by railway trains have been the cause of enquiry of more coroner juries the past six months than any other cause. Almost every one of these accidents can be traced to either carelessness or abstraction on the part of the automobile driver. They do not seem to take into consideration the speed of the train or the fact that it cannot leave the rails to avoid hitting the road vehicle.

Engineers on railway trains have put on edge by automobile drivers who asserted that their nerves have been will insist on attempting to cross the highway ahead of the train. Engineers can see the automobile approaching for several miles on the prairie and they know instinctively that if both keep on going somebody will be killed. The engineer cannot stop and the automobile driver does not seem to sense the danger. Even if he sees that he cannot pass ahead of the train he will rush at full speed to a point just as close to the moving train as possible relying on his brakes to hold. The public should be alerted to the danger every where existing through who is driving the automobile.

Alberta One Of The Rich Salt Producing Areas In The World

Winnipeg, Oct. 10.—Byrne from springs in Eastern Alberta having the appearance of mud volcanoes has been found to assay 38.12 per cent salt, establishing Alberta as one of the richest salt producing areas in the world, according to W. O. Saunders, representing British capital interest, set in Canada's natural desources, who is en route to England to make his report. He will return to Canada in four months. In the same neighbourhood conglomerate deposits were unearthed which contained fine specimens of garnet, agate and other rare mineral products, he declared.

In the Eastern section of the Province, near the border, Mr. Saunders stated, salt deposits, rising from numerous springs in a shallow lake, were found. These "mud volcanoes" are throwing up brine 98.12 per cent of which is salt. The lake itself into which these springs flow, contain 90 per cent salt as compared with 37 per cent salt in Salt Lake, Utah.

AN IRISHMAN'S LUCK

OUR SERIAL STORY

kindness and affection, to be crowded into a marriage in which there should be everything except the only thing that counts. He had absolutely, in his heart not an atom of respect for a man who was content to accept less securing the prize for a race in which—he simply could not understand any man feeling the slightest pleasure in he had come in second because the one who came in first had been for any reason disqualified. So much for Bert. As for using some kind of clerical influence to persuade Evelyn that it was her duty to sacrifice her own feelings to promoting what Bert thought was his happiness, and what seemed to be a desirable adjustment of the family affair of the Enderbys and Chris Raye—that touched the parson on another side. Though it was not specifically stated in the obligations of the ministry, there was one which he had always held as equally binding, though it was expressed in less theological terms, and that was the obligation of a man to "play the game" in whatever shape it might present itself. Not even in his own mind did Mr. Jordan brand Mrs. Enderby as designing or unscrupulous in her schemes to win over Evelyn to Bert's suit, he remembered that she was Bert's mother and her ethics were a mother's first and last, but no active part in their forwarding. Though it was in vain to tell Mrs. Enderby so, he knew that if left to herself she would sacrifice for others all that a woman should sacrifice—when that point was reached was for herself to decide and though he gladly agreed to invite Evelyn to the Rectory for a visit to relieve a situation which was evidently a little embarrassing at the Dingle, he simply would not attempt in any way to influence Evelyn's decision. With this much Mrs. Enderby had to be content, though there was certainly an under-tone of grudge, when, in telling Daisy of her failure afterwards, she added that she had never found Mr. Jordan so difficult.

While talking with Mrs. Enderby Mr. Jordan had gone no further in his own mind than a determination to remain neutral, but there had been an appeal in Evelyn's eyes when she accepted his invitation for her to come down for a week or two to the Rectory, which had touched him on a softer spot than all Mrs. Enderby's anxieties for her poor, dear boy—it was the appeal of a hunted animal when it finds an unexpected, and possibly hostile obstacle between itself and its last refuge. It vexed and worried him at intervals all the way home, it probably gained Viven's cut or two of the whip beyond the use of her own skittishness, but that it won a final victory may be inferred from a half audible grumble to himself as he got out of the buggy in his own yard. "I'll be—battered—if the poor girl shall be, hounded—let who will be put out—and now I suppose I've got to disappoint the kid about his racket—when Dugald gets the doctor instead of the parson, he'll find it doesn't come quite so cheap."

"I Hope Every City and District Will Win My Flag"

When Edward, Prince of Wales—eager, bright eyed, smiling and sincere—arrived in Canada in August, and when he voiced his great admiration of the wonderful achievements of Canadians, on the fields of battle and at home, once again we were thrilled with joyous pride.

He asked concerning Canada's reconstruction programme, and when he was told of the Victory Loan 1919, he graciously consented to the use of his Coat of Arms on a flag, which is to be the prize of honour for districts achieving their quota in the loan.

In dedicating "The Prince's Flag" at Ottawa on Labor Day, His Royal Highness said in part—

"It is a great joy to me to be associated with the loan, which is the bridge between war and peace, and which is finishing off the job."

"I hope every city and district will win my flag."

Striking, and beautiful in design, this flag will form not only an unique memento of Victory Year, but a lasting and outstanding souvenir of the visit of His Royal Highness—a visit which will remain as one of the most memorable events in Canada's history.

The reproduction above shows the design of the flag. The body is white, the edge red; in the upper left hand corner is the Union Jack, and in the lower right hand corner the Prince of Wales' Coat of Arms.

The flag is made in two sizes, 4 feet 6 inches by 9 feet for small cities, towns and villages, and 7 feet by 13 feet 6 inches for cities of over 10,000 population.

Canada has been divided into canvassing districts by the Victory Loan Organization. Each city forms one district. Other districts have been determined according to population.

Each of these canvassing districts has been allotted a certain amount in Victory Bonds to sell. To win the Prince's Flag, therefore, a district has to sell its allotment. That is the one and simple condition.

Anticipating that many districts will buy far beyond their allotment, the organization decided that for each twenty-five per cent. excess of the quota one Prince of Wales' Crest be awarded. Thus the workers in a district doubling its quota will be the proud winners of four small crests for their Honour Flag. These crests will be sewn to the flag. The Prince's Crest—the three ostrich plumes—is shown at the top of the coat of arms.

To every organization with fifty or more employees, where seventy-five per cent. of the enrollment invests a total of ten per cent. of the annual payroll in Victory Bonds, supplementary Prince of Wales Flag in smaller form—48 inches by 34 inches—will be awarded.

The allotment for each district has been carefully considered, and is based on a conservative estimate of the purchasing power of the district.

Your district can sell its allotment and thus win the Prince's Flag, provided each person does his or her share.

You will gladly do your part and encourage your neighbour to do his.

Remember YOUR purchase may be the one that decides whether or not your district is to be the proud possessor of the Prince's Flag.

The Prince's Motto is "I Serve"
Will You also Serve?
